The Board of Trust is the governing body of the university. The chancellor, who is also president of the board of trustees, is the chief executive officer of the university. The current chancellor is Nicholas S. Zeppos.

The oldest manuscript in the collection dates from c. 1300, and new acquisitions are made regularly. The flagship Central Library, built in 1941 and renovated in 2010, is a LEED Gold certified, net-zero energy building in which the university invests in sustainability and natural resources. The university has invested in sustainable practices such as post-consumer recycled content with ink made from renewable resources, as well as in the dissemination of greater knowledge about man-made climate change and the steps necessary to counteract such change.

The university is accredited by the Commission on Colleges of the Southern Association of Colleges and Schools to award degrees. Vanderbilt University’s Medical Center is a member of a number of the American Association of University Hospitals.

Library

Vanderbilt University's library system spans the campus of the university and captures the breadth and depth of research and teaching in our disciplines. Through valuable resources, opportunities, and experiences, we connect our students, faculty, and staff to the knowledge and opportunities of the world. Our collections include the external records of the university. The library is among the top research libraries in the nation and home to more than a million volumes, including databases, journals, and individual works. It collaborates with the collections on and off campus to ensure that our students, faculty, and staff have access to the information they need, no matter where they are or how they search. The library engages the students in their research projects and in the academic community. The library provides opportunities for learning and research. The library is one of the many resources available to students and faculty at the university and beyond.

Library

Vanderbilt University’s library is a world-class collection and library system of the core elements of digital and physical collections on campus. Through various scholars, resources and expert services, significant space across campus libraries, architectural design is one of the educational missions of the library. The libraries are among the top research collections in the nation and more than a million items, including databases for journals, books, and individual volumes. The libraries serve the collections in the office as a one-stop solution, with new and updated publications as an added feature. In addition to its support of Vanderbilt research and curriculum, all the libraries include the Nashville Public Library for Research, the Vanderbilt Reference Center for Vanderbilt and Middle Tennessee, and the widely available access to libraries all around the world.
