

Democratic Values and Behaviors of Paraguay, A Comparison of 1996 with 1998

Technical information

Country	Year	Size of sample	Weighted/Unweighted:
Paraguay	1998	1,450	Unweighted

This survey was carried out in 1998. It was a follow up to the 1996 study, which is as a part of the Latin America Public Opinion Project of LAPOP. The sample design was identical to that of 1996. It was funded by The United States Agency for International Development (USAID) and the University of Pittsburgh and carried out by CIRD (Centro de Informacion y Recursos para el Desarrollo del Comit  Paraguay-Kansas).

The survey was a national probability design, with a total N of 1,450. The sample frame was based on the Population and Housing census conducted in Paraguay in 1992. It was carried out in Spanish and Guaran .

The interviews were conducted in 56 municipalities of the 15 departments of Paraguay. The sample was not designed to proportionally represent each department's population, but to represent the major regions of the country. The complete report as well as the questionnaire (in Spanish) can be found at <http://www.lapopsurveys.org> "Democratic Values and Behaviors of Paraguay, A Comparison of 1996 with 1998", written by Mitchell Seligson and published CIRD and the University of Pittsburgh's Department of Political Science with the support of USAID.

Containing data gathered in 1998, this national survey report analyzes the attitudes of Paraguay's citizens towards support for stable democracy, elections, administration of justice and support for antidemocratic behavior.
