Uruguay	2010	1,500	Unweighted

This survey was carried out between March and April of 2010, as part of the LAPOP AmericasBarometer 2010 wave of surveys. It is a follow-up of the national surveys of 2006, and 2008 carried out by the LAPOP. The 2010 survey was conducted by Vanderbilt University, CIFRA, González Raga & Associates and la Universidad de Montevideo with the field work being carried out by CIFRA and González Raga & Associates. The 2010 AmericasBarometer received generous support from many sources, including USAID, UNDP, IADB, Vanderbilt U., Princeton U., Université Laval, U. of Notre Dame, among others.

The project used a national probability sample design of voting-age adults, with a total N of 1,500 people. It involved face-to-face interviews conducted in Spanish. The survey used a complex sample design, taking into account stratification and clustering.

The sample consists of two strata representing the two main geographical regions: Montevideo and Interior. Each stratum was further sub-stratified by urban and rural areas. Respondents were selected in clusters of 6-8 interviews in urban areas and 10-12 in rural areas.

The sample consists of 59 primary sampling units and 301 final sampling units including all 19 departments in Uruguay. A total of 1,377 respondents were surveyed in urban areas and 123 in rural areas. The estimated margin of error for the survey is ± 2.53 .
