The Battle of Franklin
Spring Hill Sets Up Franklin
Federal Position at Carter House
Carter House Grounds
From Federal HQ looking down Columbia Pike
Across the Columbia Pike
Schofield’s Position
Confederate Position-Winstead Hill
Period Photographs of Winstead Hill
Confederate Position

19th century photo looking from Winstead Hill towards Franklin clearly shows the two miles of open ground Hood's men would cross.
View of Confederate Flank
Engraving of the Confederate Position
Sketch of the Battlespace-1864
Confederate Attack

[Confederate Attack Map: Battle of Franklin, TN, November 30, 1864]

By 7:40 a.m., S. D. Lee's Corps arrive on the battlefield and in advance his lead division under Maj. Gen. Edward Johnson. Johnson's men strike the Federal works and are repulsed.
Federal Forward Lines Overrun
Attack Stalls at Federal Main Line
SKETCH
SHOWING THE DISPOSITION OF THE
CAVALRY CORPS, MILITARY DIVISION OF THE MISS.
BY MAJ. GEN. JAMES H. WILSON, Commanding
AT THE
BATTLE OF FRANKLIN, TENN.,
November 30, 1864.
BY E. TUNICA, Engineer, Cavalry Corps.
Scale
Accompanying report of
SERIES XLV PART I PAGE 560
Attack Stalls at Federal Main Line